CITY SCHOOLS

In a More Premising Condition Than Ever Before-Largely Increased Attendance and Every Building Crowded-Confidence and Pride in Them Restored-The Debt Soon to be Obliterated.

"The schools are in a better condition now than I have ever known them," said superintendent Collier, yesterday evening, to a representative of the APPEAL, who called at his office.

"How does the attendance compare with hat of previous years?" was asked. "As you will see by reference to the last report, the number in attendance then was 3307. The schools opened with 3031, against 2629 present at the first day last last year partially accounts for it, but the fact is that the public confidence in the principal objection urged against them has been that the children were not advanced fast enough and that their studies were not diversified enough. In was noticed that pupils in attendance upon private schools advanced more rapidly and that the number of studies they pur-sued was often double that of children in the public schools. Their monthly re-ports showed a higher average, and they rarely ever failed to get beautifully-colored picture cards every day. But it has be-come a patent fact that the training of the ity schools is, in the end, of more real nonthly reports, they are made out by ervants of the public and not of private ndividuals, and are a true index of the knowledge of the children. The ncentives held out are superior to picture ards and medals, though it may be prob-ble that some children would apply hemselves more closely with rewards of his character in view. In a word, the schools occupy the position to the public that it is intended they should. More than confidence is felt—it is pride, and I am glad to see it. They need the cordial support of the best people of the city, not only in theory, but in practice. A large num-ber of them are sending their children to the public schools, and I feel confident in predicting that the number will be double next year. There are a great many rea sons why I desire this. With the children of the wealthier classes as members of the schools, our financial condition will be improved, and we can have what we now and in the greatest need of-more good

"With the increased attendance you must find it a matter of considerable difficulty to accommodate them ail."

"Indeed we do; all of the schoolhouses are full. If we had room the number could be increased fully 2000. We can crowd in a few in some of the buildings, but we are too much too crowded already, and all of the teachers have more to do than ought to be demanded of them. We could admit an additional hundred or two if we had seating capacity, but we have not a surplus bench or desk, and our finances are such that we cannot provide them at present. We require blackboards, curtains for the windows, and a hundred other necessaries. Theones keene as "Bertuccio, the Jester."

Thomas Keene as "Bertuccio, the Jester."

The applause was generous and the audience was on the whole weil pleased. Mr. Keene's interpretation of this role, for which Mr. Booth is famous, differs in some respects from the magnificent performance of the latter; and while it is full of power yet lacks that subtle something whi h forces one to lose sight of the vulgar costume of the fool and look only upon the bursting heart of the outraged man. With Mr. Keene the tawdry jacket of the jester impresses itself to see and feel and sympathize with those emotions of grief, despair, love and hate the play seems natural enough. Between Leading Demogratic and Republican Orators-The Hon. H. H. Harrison, Republican Elector,

— A good crowd in the Tenth Ward last night was addressed by a number of Independent colored Republicans, among whom were R. T. Brown and Wesley Thomas. They repudiated the action of the County Republican Convention, and their announcement that they would vote and work for the Democratic ticket was greeted with wild cheering. The meeting was in every respect enthusiastic, and the "Federal ring" was emphatically demonth. The speakers will be Capt. R. T. Brown, Henry Trobridge, Wesley Thomas, B. F. Petway, Thad Plummer and Madison Vorner, at the following places: Corner of Auction and Main streets, Friday, the 24th; corner of Linden and Main streets, Saturday, the 25th; crossing of the Memphis and Charleston railroad and Beale street, Monday, the 27th; Poplar streets, Second and Cayoso of Fourth and Poplar streets, Wednesday, the 29th; corner of Second and Gayoso streets, Thursday, the 30th; Louisville and Nashville railroad shops, Friday, the 31st.

There was an everilent ettendance of Independent colored Republicans, among whom were R. T. Brown and Wesley Thomas, and The Hon. S. F. Wilson, of Gallatin, who was the candidate of the low-tax Democrats for Governor four years sgo, and the Hon. H. H. Harrison is a quiet, dignified speater, and made all that could be made out of his side of the question. It is unfortunate that the speech of the Hon. S. F. Wilson could not have been heard by a larger class. It was forcibly delivered and bearing the country of the work of a thorough acquaintance with all the great issues of the day. He never paused for a word, and great class. It was forcibly delivered and bearing the country of the Hon. H. H. Harrison.

There was an every respect enthusiastic, and the dience assembled at the Exposition building last night to hear the debate between the Hon. S. F. the active membership at the Mozart re-hearsal last night. The chorns has had many accessions this season, most of whom prove desirable acquisitions, and whom prove desirable acquisitions, and the manner in which the various works in preparation are handled promises a most enjoyable programme for the coming concert, which takes place about the third week in November. Mr. Downs announced, during the evening, that the conservatory had engaged for next Monday evening the services of the eminent Boston pianist, Jno. A. Preston, who is making a tour of the principal cities, and has everywhere met with distinguished success. As these great artists are brought more particularly to give the pupils of the conservatory opportunities of forming their tastes on the best models, the latter are admitted free to all entertainments, and it is hoped that all will avail them-selves of the benefits offered. The public should liberally sustain these ventures, as they are of incalculable good in an educa-tional way, to Memphis, and as the prices harged are far more reasonable than than to discover that the act was uncon night witnessed The Fool's Revenge, as pre-sented at Leubrie's Theater, with Mr. Thomas Keene as "Bertuccio, the Jester." will dispute the fact that the interests of the country began to revive under the high tariff inaugurated. Has the country prospered under the operation of the tariff of 1860, which was brought about by the Republican party? Great pros-perity and increase of wealth has been the result of Republican rule. There is a distribution of wealth in this country, which shows that it is not confined to a few." Mr. Harris went on to prove that this great country to blossom like a rose.

"The Democratic party," he said, "had dodged the tariff issue, or favored free trade. In 1880 they declared for a tariff in the last act where Ar. Reene and Mr. The debt has been reduced since that time to $8:27. In another year, I am rejoiced to say, it will be entirely obliterated, but the salary of the teachers has not been paid for last May. Even the janitors and others who are at work all the time are three months in arrears."

"What is the school revenue?"

"For the session of 1882-83 it was $42,790 33, and for the session of 1883-84 it was $52,737 95. It would be much it was $52,737 95. It would be much to that the Appeal of last Sunday. The tax assessment is high enough, but the policy of low valuation decreases the income of the schools fully one-third, perhaps one-half. We are hopeful for the future, however, and in the meantime are doing everything in our power with the meantime are doing everyt position."

The Parements of Paris, which is to be the attraction at Leubrie's Theater next week, is now doing a good business in St. Louis, sense a blood-and-thunder creation. There are not ridiculously impossible situations. Every character has a place and work to do, and does it well. Forming the groundwork of the drama is a mysterious disappearance, and centering about this circumstance is a succession of incidents worked out with refreshing vigor and realism.

Can public is to keep the corrupt element out of power. My competitor seems to imagine that if the Democratic party gets into power that somehow or other

In the dairy Mr. Carlyle narrates an interview he had with Queen Victoria, saying that the Queen was very gracious, pretty in her demeanor very gracious, pretty in his esteem, oreatly in his esteem, Reading carefully the article contributed by Gen. Beauregard to The Century magazine in your paper this morning and here. confess that the latter's allegations in regard to President Davis are so thoroughly sustained by official letters, orders and telegrams, at the several dates issued, that they are amply sustained and incontrovertibly fortified by the facts thereby elicited and the proofs adduced. Mr. Davis on the one side and Mr. Lincoln on the other of that great struggle for the autonomy of States on the one part and for the holding the Union together against its violation on the other, are the honored of either section to laud and eulogize, or to bitterly denounce. Neither were great in the military line, however eminent in the civic. Mr. Davis, unfortunately, thought himself qualified in both, and, in a measure, undertook to act in both. Therein lies the fatal error that caused the Confederacy's collapse. Judge Roman touches on every point that has a bearing on what may be called Gen. Beauregard's impeachment in The Century article. Step by step, firm yet calm, he gives irrefutable documents and proves Beauregard's allegations true. So much that has never been placed before the reading public till now is in his work, set forth in so clear a light, that everyone who wanted to see the history of that struggle aright, and what Southerner does not, should read his work and satisfy himself or herself that glory of the "Lost Cause" was but feeble in comparison with its pure, unselfish holiness.
